

Rose Type	Description
David Austin 'English' Roses	Specifically bred by David Austin and renowned for repeat flowering and beautiful perfume. These roses display a variety of habits and can be grown into many different situations.
Modern Shrub Roses	A very broad group of Roses. A huge variety of habits, but the majority are robust and easy to grow. Many repeat flower and many are perfumed. These Roses are best used in mixed borders.
Floribunda Roses	Literally many flowered roses. Bushy plants which usually have clusters of bloom. A huge variety of colours and perfumes. Repeat flowering. Best used in dedicated border.
HT Roses	Originally bred for show. Tend to produce single flowers on long stems- good for cutting. Repeat flowering and often perfumed.
Groundcover Roses	As the name suggests generally used to spread horizontally. Usually no more than 18" to 2 foot in height. Robust plants. Often repeat flower but seldom perfumed.
French Roses	Most of our selection bred by the Delbard family. Very healthy, disease resistant plants. Unusual colours and mostly beautifully perfumed.
Patio Roses	Miniature roses seldom more than 18" in height. Perfect for growing in pots or at the front of a border. Seldom perfumed. Usually small, pretty clusters of flowers which repeat.
Small Climbing Roses	Bred to climb up a fence, over an arch or up a pillar. Need support. Repeat flower and sometimes perfumed. Maximum height 9'
Large Climbing Roses	Bred to climb up a house wall or tall structure. Need support. Repeat flower and sometimes perfumed. Max height 25'
Rambling Roses	This is a group that generally has generous clusters of flowers on long flexible stems. Many grow large and can scramble through trees or cover unsightly buildings. They mostly only flower once.
